In honor of National Volunteer Week, learn about some of our dedicated volunteer leaders and the ways they are giving back. This May, the University of Miami Alumni Association welcomes 'Cane graduates to help at any stage of your career. Themes, there are various digital tools, resources, and methods to help you stay connected to the U, and fellow alumni, and friends. Today is no joke, humor goes viral in the time of coronavirus. Participate in the Lowe Museum's Hidden Stories – New Voices project. University of Miami Miller School of Medicine alumni from across the country are caring for COVID-19 patients. Try share their firsthand accounts of their front lines. University News, and networks to engage with. Help us celebrate the Class of 2020 with a commemorative orange, green, and white tassel and a note of inspiration. Show your support for the Class of 2020 with a commemorative orange, green, and white tassel and a note of inspiration. Celebrating 'Cane grads with 360-degree photos, share photos of graduates getting ready and reporting that their design that works. They are designing face shields with 3D printers to caring for new mothers, and supporting their communities. From designing face shields with 3D printers to caring for new mothers, and supporting their communities. University of Miami Miller School of Medicine virtual town hall focuses on rapid testing for COVID-19 and gauging community spread. Second UHealth/Miller School of Medicine virtual town hall focuses on COVID-19 potential impacts on the world of architecture and the design of future cities.