Thomas Hilbish Named Distinguished Alumnus for 1992

Thomas Hilbish, who established himself as one of America’s leading conductors of choral music, received the School of Music’s Distinguished Alumnus of the Year Award on May 7 at the School’s Annual Graduation Recognition Ceremony.

In a career spanning 40 years, Thomas Hilbish is widely respected for his ability to inspire musicians to achieve levels of performance far beyond expectations. While Hilbish has been widely renowned for fostering and interpreting 20th century choral music, his extensive repertoire includes virtually the entire choral and oratorio literature.

After completing bachelor’s and master’s degrees from the University of Miami and Westminster Choir College, respectively, Hilbish was named Supervisor of Music for the Princeton Public Schools in 1948. During his 16 years there, he built the Princeton High School Choir into a nationally recognized ensemble that was acclaimed for the professional level of its work.

Hilbish joined the faculty of The University of Michigan in 1965. He served as chairman of the conducting department for nine years, and was director of choirs. On arriving in Ann Arbor, he founded the University of Michigan Chamber Choir. Under his guidance, the Chamber Choir became internationally recognized for the excellence of its performances.

Particularly noteworthy was Hilbish’s participation as associate music director in the Fifth International Choral Festival in Philadelphia in 1982 in
Dear Alumni and Friends:

Even though I have recently completed my ninth year as Dean of this remarkable school, I still marvel at the energy, creativity, dedication, and quality of the faculty who comprise its very core. I also, literally every day, observe the intellectual and imaginative stretching qualities of our students. How they inspire and challenge us to do our jobs better! I count myself to be exceptionally fortunate to be a part of this vital milieu. At the same time, I also often think about the incredible responsibility that my colleagues and I share for the education and training of this generation of talented and motivated pre-professionals. Concerns for viability and quality continuously occupy our collective thoughts. Change has become the norm, and our responsibility is to maintain a forefront position as our multi-faceted field evolves. This is a challenge, to say the least, since the distinction between what is a fad and what is a substantive movement in various music and music-related fields can sometimes be blurred.

Our over 700 students come from more than 40 states and 25 countries, and they are well served by almost 100 faculty who, in many instances, have earned national and international reputations in their respective specializations. The School’s 30 degree programs attest to a confluence of traditional and contemporary programs that are unique and comprehensive. This combination and interaction represents, in many respects, a microcosm of the complex world of music that has evolved and continues to do so in ways that we may not even be able to predict.

Following an almost three-year delay while the University and the City of Coral Gables negotiated the approval of a master plan for the Coral Gables campus, it appears that groundbreaking for the L. Austin Weeks Center for Recording and Performance will take place in June of this year. Containing a 150-seat recital hall and a state-of-the-art recording studio, the Weeks Center will complement the work of students and faculty in important ways. A central feature of the recording studio will be the new 56-channel recording console just received from the Sony Corporation.

Exchanges and programs abroad continue to provide students and faculty with valuable opportunities for musical and cultural enrichment. Our five-week summer program in Salzburg for singers, pianists, and string players is entering its sixth year. In July, fifteen students and three faculty will spend over two weeks in Trento, Italy engaging in master classes and performing in the surrounding area. Then, in the fall, fifteen students from the Conservatory of Trento will come to our campus for two weeks of study and performances during Festival Miami. A new exchange program with the Hochschule fur Musik in Vienna will commence in September when our institutions will each exchange three students in composition. And, finally, discussions are underway to initiate an exchange program in jazz studies with the Hilversum Conservatory in Amsterdam.

My colleagues and I appreciate your ongoing interest and support.

Festival Miami 1992 Celebrates Columbus Quincentennial and Mostly Piano

Festival Miami, founded in 1983, is an international celebration of music presented annually by the University of Miami School of Music. It is a direct outgrowth of the School’s primary goal to maintain its historical commitment to serve as a major cultural resource for the people who live within or visit Greater Miami.

The Festival is designed to enrich the cultural life of Miami and to provide high quality events at affordable prices for residents and tourists alike. The Festival reflects the international character of Miami by drawing upon local, national, and international performers.

Programming for 1992 will continue its international celebration of music by including guest orchestras, soloists, conductors and composers, and will feature artists and music from France, Belgium, Russia, Vietnam, Japan, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, and Mexico. Performances will include chamber, orchestral and solo works from many periods as well as contemporary works which are seldom presented. World premieres are a common feature of Festival Miami. This year, Telephone Poles, by Kenneth Fuchs with text by John Updike will be presented. The tradition of presentations by the School’s nationally known faculty and student performing resources will continue.

Festival Miami 1992 will salute the Quincentennial Celebration of Columbus’ voyage to the new world by presenting some of the most noted Spanish and Interamerican artists of our time, as well as music from Spain, the United States, and Latin America. Symphony concerts, recitals, and chamber music presentations will be complemented by jazz performances.

collaboration with Robert Shaw. In addition to conducting performances of his Chamber Choir, Hilbish conducted the joint chorus of 500 singers from 11 countries and 5 continents in performances at Yale University, Avery Fisher Hall, and Kennedy Center.

Hilbish has made several recordings with the Chamber Choir, primarily of 20th Century music. Particularly noteworthy is his recording of Menotti's The Unicorn, the Gorgon, and the Manticore, which received a Grammy nomination in 1981.

As an orchestral conductor, Hilbish has conducted the Warsaw Symphony and the Szczecin Philharmonic in Poland, as well as the Harvard Philharmonic and the Princeton University Orchestra.

Professor Hilbish also served as visiting professor at Princeton University, New York University, University of Southern California, Indiana University, Western Michigan University, Westminster Choir College, Florida State University, University of Wisconsin, UCLA, and Harvard.

In 1987, Hilbish retired from The University of Michigan. His final concert as director of choirs was an acclaimed performance of Benjamin Britten's War Requiem. He and his wife Barbara continue to make Ann Arbor their home.
Dean William Hipp presided over a dedication ceremony on November 10 that unveiled a handsome, specially designed donor recognition display in the lobby of Gusman Concert Hall. The dedication reads: “In grateful recognition of those whose generosity has helped to build and sustain the School of Music.” The display is a modest attempt on the part of the School of Music to pay tribute to its benefactors. Roy Nirschel, Vice President for University Advancement, also took part in the ceremony.

The categories on the display are in recognition of cumulative gifts to the School of Music. The names of individuals, foundations, and corporations who appear on the display represent the following levels of giving:

Roy J. Nirschel, Jr., Vice President for University Advancement, Marta Weeks, and Dean William Hipp at dedication of School of Music Recognition Display.
The School of Music presented its premier Gala "Building for the Future" on January 26, at the Grand Bay Hotel in Coconut Grove. Over two hundred guests attended the first Building Campaign Gala which raised over $50,000 for the School. The talents of the School's students, Francisco Frias, classical guitarist; Ken Gustafson, keyboard; and the Broadway show review performed by the Musical Theater Workshop, were the hit of the evening. The soirée began with a cocktail hour on the terrace, followed by a candlelight dinner in the Grand Ballroom. The evening ended with dance and merriment at Regine's. Host and hostess for the Gala were Phillip and Patricia Frost.

(l. to r.) are Dean William Hipp and Frankie Hipp and Gala hostess and host Patricia and Phillip Frost.

Ken Pohlmann Receives Award for Excellence

As director of the music engineering program in the School of Music, Ken Pohlmann blends his love of music with technical skills.

For Pohlmann’s passionate involvement in his craft, he was awarded the 1992 Phillip Frost Award for Excellence in Teaching and Scholarship at the School of Music Graduation Recognition Ceremony on May 7. The $5,000 award, established to recognize the achievements of the music school’s most distinguished faculty, is funded by the Patricia L. Frost Endowment.

Pohlmann came to the University of Miami in 1977 to teach in the Music Engineering Program. He was later appointed program director. In 1986 he established a master of science degree in music engineering, the first graduate program of its kind in the country.

“In my opinion, it isn’t enough for a teacher to impart knowledge; he has to also provide real world insights and, in particular, bridge the gap between academia and a professional career,” says Pohlmann. “It’s a very pragmatic approach. It has to be.”

Pohlmann, who has undergraduate and graduate degrees in electrical engineering from the University of Illinois, combines aesthetics and technology to practice a creative form of engineering. In addition to teaching, Pohlmann has authored three books on music engineering and writes regularly and prolifically for popular audio magazines. Since 1982 he has written over 500 articles for audio magazines including Audio, Car Stereo Review, CD Review, Guitar Player Magazine, Stereo Review, and Sound and Vision, among others.

Pohlmann is also a consultant to the audio industry in many areas including the design of mastering and replication facilities for compact disc manufacturers, and the development of audio systems for Japanese and American Auto makers.

Pohlmann received the Audio Engineering Society’s Fellowship Award in 1990 for his work as an educator and author in the field of audio engineering. He was elected to the AES Board of Governors in 1991.
UM Library Acquires Extensive Music Theater Collection

The Larry Taylor-Billy Matthews Music Theater Archive, a collection of recordings and music focusing on the American music theater and popular music, has been acquired by the University of Miami Richter Library. This outstanding archive was assembled over the last 25 years by New York collectors Larry Taylor and Billy Matthews.

The comprehensive collection includes 15,000 long-playing records, 1,000 compact discs, several hundred video and audio cassettes, and 20,000 pieces of sheet music. Among the archives are more than 1,000 piano-conductor scores, vocal scores, and volumes of vocal selections. Also in the collection are 3,000 playbills and programs, 800 musical reference books, and an electrified player piano with more than 100 piano rolls.

Virtually all Broadway musicals—both American and British recordings—are represented in the archive. Many of the audio cassettes are unpublished studio recordings, which are often more complete than those released for sale.

Larry Jay Taylor, who died in March 1991, was printing coordinator and office manager of the Chelsea Music Service, Inc., which handled the music for Les Misérables, Phantom of the Opera, Cats, and other Broadway shows. He was also music librarian for Liza Minelli, Chita Rivera, and Roberta Peters, among others. As a music archivist, Taylor was research consultant for numerous television programs.

Born in Akron, Ohio, in 1946, Taylor was raised in Anaheim, California, before moving to New York in 1966. Early in his career he was a singer, touring with Dorothy Collins, Gig Young, and others. Taylor was one of Judy Garland’s backup singers during her final New York appearance.

Billy Matthews, a Texan, began his theatrical career producing and directing historical pageants for the Texas and New Mexico State Centennial Committees. Matthews, who was Taylor’s longtime companion, has had a long and broad career as a director and production stage manager with Broadway and national touring companies, as well as university, stock and dinner theaters.

Matthews was a founding member of the Society of Stage Directors and Choreographers, a member of its executive board for 12 years, and its treasurer for nine years. He led a drive which results in the society becoming a national union.

The Larry Taylor-Billy Matthews Music Theater Archive, now part of UM’s Music Library, is housed in a closed stack area at UM’s Richter Library. Access to the collection is provided by the staff of the Music Library.

1992 Winners of Abraham Frost Prize in Composition Named

The “march” compositions of the winners of the Abraham Frost Prize in Composition were premiered at the University of Miami School of Music on Thursday, April 16, at Gusman Concert Hall on the Coral Gables campus.

Winner of the First Prize of $3,000 was John Cheetham for his composition, Ha’ penny March. The Second Prize of $1,500 went to James Leslie Hosay for the march, The Virginians.

John Cheetham, professor of music theory and composition at the University of Missouri-Columbia, was born in Taos, New Mexico in 1939, and holds bachelor’s and master’s degrees from the University of New Mexico as well as the Doctor of Musical Arts in composition from the University of Washington. During his tenure at 1978 to the 26th United States Army Band at Fort Hamilton, New York, as a trumpet player and arranger. In 1981 Hosay auditioned for and was accepted to the position of music copyist for the United States Army Band, "Pershing's Own," in Washington, D.C. In 1991 he was promoted to his current position of staff arranger for the United States Army Band.

Adjudicators for the "march" composition award were University of Miami School of Music faculty members Nicholas DeCarbo, assistant dean and associate professor of music education and music therapy, David Gray, music director and conductor of the University of Miami Wind Ensemble, and Michael Mann, associate director of bands. Alfred Reed, professor and chairman of the department of music media and industry coordinated the competition.

In January 1990, Phillip and Patricia Frost gave $1.5 million to the University of Miami School of Music to establish the Patricia Louise Frost Professorship for the Dean of the School of Music, the Anna Frost Music Scholarship Fund, and the Abraham Frost Prize in Composition. The scholarship and the composition awards are named after Frost's parents.

Frost, a prominent dermatologist, has been a member of the UM board of Trustees since 1983, and is chief executive officer of IVAX Pharmaceuticals. He was formerly the co-founder and chairman of the board of Key Pharmaceuticals, Inc. The son of Russian and Polish immigrants, Frost dedicated the composition prize to his father, Abraham, because of his love of music.

Patricia Frost has been an educator with Dade County Public Schools for more than 20 years and is the principal of the West Laboratory Elementary School.

Music and Black Ethnicity Conference Held

A Conference on Music and Black Ethnicity in the Caribbean and South America was held in January at the University of Miami/James L. Knight International Center in Miami. The Conference was sponsored by the University of Miami North-South Center, Ambler Moss, director. Robert Parker, associate dean in the School of Music, was the Conference coordinator and Gerard Behague of the University of Texas at Austin, was the chairman.

Fifteen distinguished ethnic music lecturers representing Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Cuba, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, and Brazil were invited and participated in the conference. Also participating were several music ensembles: Haitian, Afro-Cuban, and Trinidad steel pan groups from Miami; an Afro-Caribbean group from Puerto Rico; and The University of Miami Percussion Ensemble.

Beginning with the 1992 fall semester, all students in the School of Music will have the opportunity to use two specially designed and equipped computer/MIDI labs. Each lab will contain 17 workstations consisting of a MIDI-compatible keyboard, an IBM PS/2 personal computer, a MIDI interface to connect the computer and keyboard, and computer software for various tasks. Compact Disc Read-Only Memory (CD ROM) readers will be interfaced with the stations for applications ranging from database research to formal and harmonic analysis of music. In addition to the workstations, laser printers will be situated in each lab for access by all users.

IBM will furnish the computer equipment and a major manufacturer of electronic musical instruments will provide the necessary keyboards and peripheral equipment. All the students in the School of Music will use the labs for practicing music theory and ear training, recording (sequencing) music, creating musical notation, digital signal processing, emulation, microprocessor emulation, automated recorder alignment, loudspeaker design, and personal productivity.

The School of Music is just one of the recipients of more than 800 computers the University of Miami received in its recent corporate partnership with IBM. The $17 million transaction, affecting more than 30 areas of study and research, will bring state-of-the-art computer technology to the University. Additional IBM computers were received by the School of Music for the music therapy and music engineering programs.

School of Music Receives Sony Console

Recently, the University of Miami School of Music received a top-of-the-line MXP-3056VF mixing console from the Sony Corporation for installation in the L. Austin Weeks Center for Recording and Performance. This 24-bus, in-line console has a 56-module mainframe with 101-segment vacuum fluorescent metering as well as an X-Y phase display. In addition, the console is equipped with a Sony timecode-based VCA automation computer.

Summer Program in Salzburg Expands

The enrollment in the University of Miami School of Music Summer Program in Salzburg, Austria has grown dramatically. This summer 39 students and professional musicians, including 22 singers, 13 pianists, and four string players, will take part in the program. Professors Buffington, Posnak, and Summers will be joined by Thomas Moore, professor of violin, as the program expands to include string chamber music.

Music and Black Ethnicity

Continued

Those attending the conference were privileged to witness disclosure of the most current status of research by acknowledged world authorities in areas vital to their own work and interests. The concerts lent further enrichment and continuity to the event. And finally, social interaction and informal exchange of ideas flowed at the opening reception, at the dinner for lecturers and guests host by Dean Hipp, and during several refreshment breaks in the conference. The proceedings of the conference will be published by the North-South Center later this year.
New Faculty

The School of Music is proud to announce that Glenn Basham, newly appointed assistant professor of violin, and Ross Harbaugh, newly appointed associate professor of cello, will join the faculty this fall.

Glenn Basham received a bachelor of music degree from the North Carolina School of the Arts and a master of music degree (with high distinction) from Indiana University. From 1987-92, he was concertmaster of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic. Basham is founder and artistic director of the Northeast Indiana Chamber Festival and, previously, was a member of the Detroit Symphony and the Miami Philharmonic, and served as visiting professor at DePauw University. His solo appearances include the Fort Wayne Philharmonic, Lansing Symphony, Plymouth Symphony, Oak Park Symphony, Marion Philharmonic, and the Palm Beach Symphony. He was awarded an Individual Artists Fellowship by the Indiana Arts Commission and was on the roster of that Commission’s Presenter Touring Program.

Ross Harbaugh holds bachelor of arts and bachelor of music degrees from Bowling Green University, with advanced studies at the Paris Conservatory, Indiana University, Brevard Music Center, Tanglewood, Academia Chigiana, Lucerne Conservatory, and Banff Music Center. Among the prizes and awards he has received are the Naumburg Chamber Music Award (First Prize in 1979) and the Tchaikovsky International Competition in Moscow (Special Mention in 1978). As founding member of the New World Spring Quartet in 1977, Harbaugh has performed throughout the U.S. and Europe and has recordings on Vox Box, Golden Crest, NWQ, CRL Musical Heritage Classics, and IMP Masters labels. His appearances as soloist with orchestras include the Cincinnati, Atlanta, and Toledo symphony orchestras, and he has served as principal cellist with the Grand Rapids Symphony, the Toledo Symphony, and the Brevard Music Center Orchestra, among others. Harbaugh has presented solo recitals in the U.S., Canada, the Netherlands, Poland, the United Kingdom, Italy, Switzerland, Hungary, the U.S.S.R., and the Canary Islands. His previous teaching experience includes stints at Harvard University, the University of Michigan, Utah State University, and the Interlochen Arts Academy.
David Alt, associate professor of voice, sang three performances of Bach’s Mass in B Minor in September for the dedication of the new Wallenberg Recital Hall at Augustana College, Rock Island, Illinois. He was featured in the musical review Noël Coward: A Talent to Amuse, which ran for six weeks at New Theatre in Coral Gables. Alt received the 1990-1991 Doris McInerny Award for Best Actor in a Leading Role for his portrayal of the title role in Shaw’s Don Juan in Hell.

In the spring, Alt sang duet recitals with Kathryn Focht of New York City in Bradenton, Florida and Little Rock, Arkansas. The recital will be repeated this summer in Iowa. In June, Alt joined soprano, Kimberly Daniel, and pianist and doctoral candidate, Matthew Bryant, in the Florida premiere of one of Leonard Bernstein’s last works, Arias and Barcarolles, on the Coral Gables Congregational Summer Artist Series.

Raymond Barr, chair of the department of musicology, presented a paper at the College Music Society Conference held in Munich, Germany in June. His paper was entitled “Music and Musicians in Munich’s History.”

Boardman, assisted by Russell Young, pianist, and Thomas Moore, violinist, presented a concert of British songs and arias in November, including works by Arne, Britten, Vaughan-Williams, and Gurney.

J. David Boyle, chair of the department of music education and music therapy, was author of an article in the May 1992 issue of the National Association of Secondary School Principals Bulletin that was devoted to music education in secondary schools. Boyle’s article was entitled “Program Evaluation in Music Education.”

Gary Campbell, adjunct lecturer in studio music and jazz, made two concert appearances at the convention of the International Association of Jazz Educators held in Miami in January. In addition, he presented a clinic based on his book, Expansions.

Frank Cooper, adjunct professor of musicology, was an invited guest for two sessions at a symposium, New Dimensions in Music Criticism, hosted by McMaster University’s Department of Music, Toronto, Ontario. Cooper’s paper was entitled “Authenticity, a Musicological Myth: the Problems of the Urtext.” The second session was a panel discussion, “What is Criticism?” The conference was held in November, 1991, and was the second International Symposium on Music Criticism.

Cooper was also a participant at the Spivey International Harpsichord Festival, held at Clayton State College in Morrow, Georgia in November. He chaired the jury for the Spivey Award for Excellence in Instrument Building, 1991: Harpsichord.

In June, Cooper presented a lecture and recital on “The Fearless Fugue,” at the Hollywood Art and Culture Center. He will repeat this project at the Indianapolis Festival Music Society Series in July.
Nicholas DeCarbo, assistant dean and associate professor of music education and music therapy, recently served as a music consultant at Miami Palmetto and Coral Shores Senior High Schools for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. DeCarbo was a member of a panel discussion on "Expanding the Secondary School Music Curriculum" at the recent FMEA conference in Tampa. In February, DeCarbo served as a music director and conductor of the tenth annual South Florida honor band festival.

Lucas Drew, professor of instrumental performance, and Raymond Barr, professor of musicology, co-authors of About the Symphony Orchestra, a handbook for concertgoers, announced that the second printing of the publication became available in January. The book, designed for the non-specialist listener, is a sourcebook that includes historical information about the development of the orchestra, the instruments, major forms of composition for orchestra, the lives and works of 51 major composers for orchestra, concert etiquette, and an extensive repertoire list. The book is published by Edwin F. Kalmus Company, Inc.

Akira Endo, director of orchestral activities and department chair of instrumental performance, was guest conductor for eight concerts with the Mid-Texas Symphony. The concerts were held throughout the 1991-1992 series. He conducted five productions for the Pittsburgh Ballet, including a premier of Prokofiev's Romeo and Juliet (new version). Other guest conducting engagements in the fall included two concerts in November with the Rochester Philharmonic and two performances of the Nutcracker Suite with the Buffalo Philharmonic in December.

In January he was music director of the St. Barts Festival located on the French West Indies Island. Other guest conducting appearances for the spring included the All State High School Honor Orchestra in Illinois, the Hamilton Philharmonic in Canada, and appearances in Venezuela and in Japan, June and July, 1992.

Steve Gryb, lecturer in studio music and jazz, presented a clinic at the International Association of Jazz Educators Conference in January. The topic of the session, "Teaching Jazz History Using a Multimedia Approach," also featured the world premiere of his hour-long video, Listening to Jazz, which is published by Prentice-Hall.

During February, Gryb presented two special lectures at Florida International University in conjunction with Black History Month. Also, he just finished a lengthy performing engagement at Turnberry Isle Yacht Club. He is presently doing research on a new video project for Prentice-Hall.

Clyde Hagler, adjunct lecturer in music engineering, gave a presentation entitled "Audio for Film" at Florida State University in October. He was also in charge of organizing three clinics for Florida State University's opening ceremonies in October of their new film mixing theater.

Music librarians Nancy Zavak and Cheryl Gowing attended the national meeting of the Music Library Association in Baltimore in February. They will be hosting the Southeast Chapter meeting in Miami in October.
In Memoriam

Astor and director, Philip (Polito) Astor died on October 19 at South Miami Hospital. Astor, adjunct professor of music, was director of the School of Music's musical theater workshop.

Astor starred on stage as well as in films and television. Among his best known roles were Arnold Beckoff in Torch Song Trilogy and as Charles Kogan in All Over Town. Both plays enjoyed extended runs on Broadway.

Astor graduated from Illinois Wesleyan University in 1965, and then attended Yale Drama School. After leaving Yale, he created the role of Judge James Wilson in the Broadway production, 1776. Later, he appeared in television soap operas, including Another World, As the World Turns, and Search for Tomorrow.

A former resident of New York City, Astor relocated to Florida in 1985 and conceived and directed the Coconut Grove Playhouse's production of Cole Porter Requests the Pleasure.

Astor came to the University of Miami School of Music in the fall of 1988 and directed many musicals, including, Very Very Very Jerry, Into the Woods, and The Boyfriend. The Philip Astor Scholarship in Musical Theater is being established at the University of Miami. Those desiring further information about this scholarship should contact Addy Castellanos, Director of Development, at (305) 284-2238.

Instrumental Performance

The Percussion Arts Quartet from Wurzburg, Germany, winners of the first International Percussion Ensemble held in Luxembourg early this year, were on campus as guests of the percussion program performing a concert in December. The program included a recent composition by Ney Rosauro, a Brazilian composer and percussionist who is in residence here as a doctoral candidate.

Music Education and Music Therapy

J. David Boyle and Frederick C. Tims presented papers at a “Symposium and Alumnifest” for graduates of the PH.D. program of the Art and Music Education and Music Therapy Department of The University of Kansas. The symposium was held in October, 1991. Boyle's paper summarized the “Contributions of Marcus E. Hahn, Teacher, Scholar, and Mentor.” Tims presented a paper on “Music, Imagery, and Betaendorphin Release.”

Barry R. Garman, J. David Boyle, and Nicholas J. DeCarbo were authors of a study entitled “Orchestra Festival Evaluations: Interjudge Agreement and Relationships Between Performance Categories and Final Ratings” and published in the Fall issue of Research Perspectives in Music Education, a publication of the Florida Music Educators Association. The study was also part of a research presentation at the National MENC Convention in New Orleans in April.

Garman graduated with a Ph.D. in Music Education this May, and Boyle and DeCarbo are members of the Music Education faculty.

Several faculty and graduate students in Music Education made presentations at the recent MENC National Convention held in New Orleans in April. Two research presentations were made: “A Study of Middle School Band Students’ Instrument Choices” by Patrick Fortney, David Boyle, and Nicholas DeCarbo and the study mentioned above by Garman, Boyle and DeCarbo.

As part of a panel discussion on Evaluation in Music Education, Boyle presented a paper on “Evaluation of Music Ability.”

The Twelfth Annual Music Education Day, an in-service conference for South Florida music teachers, sponsored by the Department of Music Education and Music Therapy in cooperation with the music supervisor's office of the Dade County Public Schools, was held on January 31. Guest clinicians included James Standifer, professor in music education at the University of Michigan; John Hylton, associate professor of music, University of Missouri-St. Louis; John Boyd, professor of music and director of bands, Indiana State University; Beverly Boardman, movement specialist and music teacher in Sarasota, Florida. Music Theory and Composition
The Other Music Ensemble, the new music ensemble of the composition department was very active during the past academic year. Members of the ensemble performed composers' works in numerous concerts featuring contemporary music, including additional performances for the Society of Composers, Inc. Regional Conference in September and the College Music Society Southern Chapter Meeting, held in Miami in February.

Keyboard Performance
In July, Paul Posnak (piano), along with faculty Gary Keller (saxophone) and Don Coffman (bass) will perform two concerts of all-American classical and popular music in Southern Italy.

Vocal Performance
Joining forces for the first time, the Opera Department, under the direction of Franklin Summers and Russell Young, the Concert choir, under the direction Donald Oglesby, and the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Akira Endo, presented the Fourth Annual Opera Gala in October in Gusman Concert Hall. Highlights from Mozart's Don Giovanni and Cosi Fan Tutte, Nicolai's Die lustigen Weiber Von Windsor, Verdi's La Traviata, and Bellini's La Sonnambula were presented. Faculty performers were David Alt, Susan Boardman, Carolyn Stanford, Franklin Summers, and Jana Young. Alumni singing in the program included Giselle Elgarresta, Anabel Para-Exum, and Paul Gibson.

The Opera Department presented an evening of operatic scenes in Brockway Hall in November. Included in the program were scenes from d'Albert's Tiefland, Mechem's Tartuffe, and the fourth act of Cilea's Adriana Lecouvreur, and Pasatieri's one act comedy La Divina.

Singers from the Collegium Musicum and members of the Plymouth Congregational Church Choir joined forces for a sixteen day European tour last summer. The tour began in London, where the choir sang a concert at the Church of St. Anne and St. Agnes. The choir, under the direction of Donald Oglesby, performed a noontime recital at historic Canterbury Cathedral and a concert at Christ College before flying to Berlin.

The singers spent three nights in Leipzig, Germany, where they sang at the Thomas Church. Accompanist Matthew Bryant, a graduate student in choral conducting, had the opportunity to play the organ both in the Thomas Church and in Bergkirche (Mountain Church) served by Joseph Haydn in Eisenstadt, Austria.

The tour continued with the choir singing in Salzburg's St. Andrea church and in Bad Ischl. The exquisite beauty of Melk Abbey Church provided the most ornate setting for the choir as the group traveled on to Vienna. The choir gave a final tour concert at the Matthias Church in Budapest. Faculty member David Alt was a featured soloist on the tour.

The University of Miami Singers, under the direction of Lee Kjelson, celebrated their 25th Anniversary with a weekend of activities and concerts on February 28-

29. All UM Singers alumni were invited to attend the reunion weekend. Activities included a evening cruise on the intercoastal waterway, an alumni choir rehearsal, an informal alumni solo performance opportunity, and the 25th Anniversary Concert featuring the 1991-92 UM Singers and Alumni Choir. There was a post concert party.

Chile, Argentina, and Uruguay were the destinations for the 20th annual overseas concert tour by the UM Singers in May. Sponsored by different organizations and programs through the United States Information Agency, the group was privileged to perform in major concert halls and University sites in Santiago, Talca, Buenos Aires, and Montevideo. A highlight of the trip was a performance at the oldest and most famous opera house in South America, the prestigious Teatro Colon in Santiago, Chile. In addition to these performances, the Singers offered three workshop/demonstrations for students and faculty at different sites in Buenos Aires and Montevideo.

The Civic Chorale of Greater Miami, Lee Kjelson, founder/music director, completed its 23rd season this year. Three major performances were given during spring semester: the traditional Valentine's Concert, with special guests, The Coastmen Chorus, a male choir from Palm Beach County, Dick Grayson, director; a special performance for the City of Miami at the Mildred and Claude Pepper Bayfront Amphitheatre; and the spring concert, including the Mass by Stravinsky, Mass in G Major by Franz Schubert, and excerpts from Mass in E Minor by Bruckner. Auditions for new members for the 1992-93 Civic Chorale season will be held August 31, September 1 and 2. For information, call 284-4162.

Pianist Roberta Rust has joined the faculty of the Harid Conservatory in Boca Raton where she teaches courses in piano literature and piano pedagogy. An article, entitled "Remembering Guomar Novaes," appeared in the April issue of Clavier Magazine. Rust returned to Latin America this spring for her fifth concert tour of the region.

Paula Savastano (B.M. 1989; M.M. 1992), after completing an internship with the Wolftrap Opera Company in Vienna, Virginia, has been appointed associate administrator of the company. Her duties include both artistic and business management of the company. She will also coordinate the summer internship program.

Christopher Schaldenbrand, baritone, was one of eight winners in the Metropolitan Opera National Auditions. The winners were featured in a "live" broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera stage in April, 1992, each receiving $10,000 cash and $10,000 in study grants, coaching lessons, and travelling. In addition, he has been awarded a contract with the Metropolitan Opera Young Artists Program starting in August, 1992. He was also the winner of both the district and regional Metropolitan Opera Vocal Competition in 1991 and 1992. Other awards include first prize, National Society of American Arts and Letters (1990); first prize, NATS student competition in the men's senior division (1990); and the recipient of The Richman Memorial Award for 1989 from the Opera Theatre of St. Louis.

Schaldenbrand attended UM from 1986-1988 and studied at Indiana University from 1988-1992. While at Indiana University he performed the following roles: "Pappageno" in the Magic Flute, "Sharpless" in Madame Butterfly, "Baron Douphlon" in La Traviata, "Schwaunard" in La Bohème, and "Don Giovanni" in Don Giovanni. As an apprentice in the St. Louis Opera Theatre Studio Program

Evansville Symphony Orchestra.

Joseph Scartelli (Ph.D. 1981) is serving as chair of the music department of Radford University, Radford, Virginia.

James H. Schmeizer (B.M. 1988) has been made marketing/merchandising manager of Ward-Brodt Music Mall in Madison, Wisconsin.

Maria Schneider was the recipient of the 1991 Gil Evans Fellowship. She premiered her commissioned working during the International Association of Jazz Educators Annual Conference held in Miami in January. Entitled Evanesence, the work was performed by the UM Concert Jazz Band. Funded by the Herb Alpert Jazz Endowment Fund and Meet the Composer, the Gil Evans Fellowship is an annual program which identifies an emerging jazz composer from an international field of candidates and whose work is performed at the IAJE annual conference.
Terry Russell Eifert (D.M.A. 1988), director of choral music activities, as accompanist/associate conductor for the chamber singers ensemble. The choral program’s extensive season included a premier of John Rutter’s Magnificat for the Music Association of California Community Colleges.

Lisa Schroeder

Lisa Schroeder Pittman (B.M. 1987), after relocating to California in the fall, joined the choral music staff at Southwestern College in San Diego. Lisa will assist alumna Wisconsin School of Ballet for two years and the musical leader on the Spirit of Chicago cruise ship.

Keith Seppenam (M.M. 1981) is a full-time faculty member at the University of California in Chico. He is director of the sound recording program.

Silsfredo Serrano (B.M. 1987), tenor, graduated from Indiana University with a M.M. in Opera/Vocal Performance. While a student in the program, he placed second in the graduate men category in the NATS Regional Competition Tri-State (Michigan, Indiana, Ohio) and received the “Puccini Award” in the Palm Beach Opera Competition. Roles include “Nathaniel” in Tales of Hoffman, “Rodrigo” in Verdi’s Otello, “St. Brioche” in The Merry Widow, and “Der Narr” in Wezecz.

Chuck Silverman is freelancing as a Latin percussionist. Several recent publications deal with adapting Afro-Caribbean rhythms for the drumset. He concluded a recent European clinic tour as guest speaker at a Percussion forum.

Henry Skolnick (B.M. 1982; M.M. 1984) has recently returned from a tour of England. In May, he performed Erwin Schulhoff’s Befruchtigung for solo contrabassoon (1922) on a recital in the Purcell Room of London’s South Bank Center. This recital featured bassoonists from around the world, and was given to mark the 60th birthday of England’s most revered bassoonist, William Waterhouse. In June, he offered contrabassoon master classes at the Royal Northern College of Music in Manchester and the Royal Academy of Music in London. Presently, Skolnick is the contrabassoonist of the Florida Philharmonic Orchestra in Miami. His reputation as one of the few soloists on the contrabassoon has prompted several works written for him by both European and American composers.

Mauricio Ardila and Eduardo Salazer have been translating Sony operating manuals for the Latin American market.

The "Bop Brothers," a UM jazz quintet, won "best group" honors for the second consecutive year at the National Collegiate Jazz Competition in Boulder, Colorado in March. Members of the group include Jeff Babko, piano; Leo Huppert, bass; Al Young, drums; Steve Smyth, trumpet; and Peter Brewer, alto saxophone. The group emerged from semi-finalist standing to win the finals, a feat unparalleled in the history of the competition. In addition, four of the five members, Babko, Brewer, Young, and Smyth received "outstanding soloist" awards, all performing original compositions. Faculty member Vince Maggio is the director of the ensemble.

Beth A. Buttell, senior in the music industry program, interned in spring semester at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Mike Chandler produced the UM baseball season for radio broadcasts.

Lyric soprano, Sally Cummings, represented the states of Florida, Alabama, and Georgia in the finals of the National Association of Teachers of Singing and won the Southeast Regional Competition in Tallahassee in April. She will compete for the national title later this year at a convention in Boston. Cummings, a 1987 graduate of the music industry program, completed a Masters degree in vocal performance this spring.

The annual concerto competition winners, sponsored by the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, were: Jessica Dan, violin, performing Butterfly Lover's Concerto by Chen Gang; Cindy Schafer, oboe, performing Introduction and Theme and Variations by Hummel; and Paula Redinger, flute, performing Ballad by Frank Martin. The winners were featured on concerts held during spring semester.

Graduate students in music engineering, Joyant Datta and Brent Karley contributed chapters to Advanced Digital Audio, a textbook authored by faculty Ken Pohlmann and published by Howard W. Sams.

Todd Del Guidice, sophomore in jazz instrumental performance, was one of the semi-finalists in the Thelonious Monk International Saxophone Competition held in Washington, D.C. in November. Todd was the youngest semifinalist to compete in this prestigious professional event.

Adam Stolarsky built a MIDI wind controller (a saxophone synthesizer) with a five octave range. Using a microprocessor, PVC pipe, and a pressure sensor, he combined elements of electronics and music to design a new type of instrument.

Alfredo Triff, graduate student in violin performance, was invited to an international concert/workshop in Germany as a representative of the United States and the University of Miami. He toured Europe last summer with the group, Sting. He recently published a book entitled Art and the Interlock with Nosil Press.

Lisa Wiggins, graduate student in violin performance, was a member of a newly formed chamber orchestra in Argentina, performing and touring there last summer.

Two undergraduate students in viola performance won scholarships for summer programs in 1991—Jorge Saade, to study with Margaret Pardee at Juilliard, and Julia Wharton, to the Quartet Program in New York.

Nick Sincaglia is recording sound effects for release by Bainbridge Records.

Rebecca Stern, graduate student in violin performance, passed the first round of auditions for the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and was recently accepted into the New World Symphony based in Miami. She also performed as soloist with the National Repertory Orchestra in Colorado during the summer 1991.

been present in large numbers. This is changing.

Jo Faulmann, assistant dean for undergraduate studies, has recently completed her third trip to the Far East to recruit music students. As a result of her travels and meetings with various education and music officials, students are learning about the University of Miami and its renown music program. This academic year has seen an increase in the number of Asian students in the School of Music.

This trend is expected to continue. A tour of music admissions administrators from Eastman, Peabody, and Oberlin was organized last year by Jo Faulmann. The group has traveled to four cities—Tokyo, Seoul, Taipei, and Hong Kong. For two years, the group has heard over one hundred very talented Asian students perform auditions for a spot at one of the schools of music. Each of the four schools reports growth in Asian applicants, as well as enrollees, as a result of the tour.

Students often choose to come to the University of Miami to enroll in the Intensive English program prior to their full-time music studies. This gives them additional time to adapt to the new culture and work with music faculty before becoming full-time School of Music students.

AUDITIONS

Ken Moses, director of admissions for the School of Music, would like to visit your community. If you know of a high school or community college in your area that has an outstanding music program, Ken would be interested in planning a recruiting trip to your city to speak with the various performance organizations in the high school. He would greatly appreciate a note from you with the name of the school and music director. Please send names and addresses to Music Admissions, School of Music, University of Miami, P.O. Box 248165, Coral Gables, Florida, 33124, Telephone (305) 284-2245, Fax (305) 284-6475.
