A Studio Music and Jazz major, Jon Secada received his bachelor of music degree in 1983, graduating Magna cum Laude, and his master of music degree in 1986. Upon graduation, “Juan,” as he was known during his years as a student at UM, taught voice and theory and performed with his own band until he was discovered by the Estefan/Miami Sound Machine and was hired as a songwriter for the group. Jon, a very versatile musician, has appeared in the lead role in the Broadway musical, Grease, has sung with Luciano Pavarotti, has done voice-overs, has won two Grammy Awards, has had four consecutive number one singles on the “Hot” Latin Chart, and is a songwriter and arranger. Jon has just released Secada, his sixth solo album and third English language recording.

Born in Cuba, Jon moved to Miami at age eight. He is a product of the Miami-Dade County Public Schools and attended Miami Hialeah High School before coming to UM as a freshman. Jon now resides in Miami with his wife, Maritere and new baby, Mikaela Nina.

Jon has never forgotten his alma mater. In 1993-94, UM named him Miami Alumnus of distinction in recognition of his outstanding accomplishments and his contributions to the University and the School of Music. In that same year, Jon established an endowed scholarship that is awarded annually to a jazz vocalist in the School of Music. Jon visits campus regularly where he gives master classes, performs, and interacts with students.

At the School of Music graduation convocation ceremony Dean William Hipp said, “Has success spoiled Jon Secada? By no means. He is constantly seeking new ways to creatively express the music that is within him, absorbing new influences from different styles and investigating new musical paths. And, in ways that those of us who know Jon treasure, he remains the same outgoing, natural, and giving individual that he was as a student here a few short years ago.”

In recognition of his stellar achievements as an internationally acclaimed singer and songwriter, and for serving as a positive role model in both his professional and personal life, the Faculty of the School of Music take great pride in the accomplishments of Jon Secada.

A major educational and cultural resource for South Florida since its inception in 1926, the School of Music maintains a substantive philosophical commitment to serving a variety of constituencies through its numerous outreach programs. In addition to their primary importance as community service efforts, these programs provide opportunities for local, national, and international visibility; audience development; the formation and extension of support groups; venues for student recruitment and fundraising. Faculty, staff, and administration devote thousands of hours each year in fulfilling this far-reaching commitment.

UM MusicTime is a multi-level program for children from birth to seven years of age that is offered in 18 sites in Miami-Dade and Broward counties, serving over 450 children each semester. Festival Miami, now approaching its 16th season, is a month-long international music festival featuring the School’s artist faculty and major ensembles, coupled with internationally known guest performers, conductors, and composers. The Festival’s season enjoys a total audience of approximately 14,000. Honor Band, Honor Choir, Honor Orchestra, and Honors Music Theatre Festival take place on separate weekends during the year, serving over 500 students from the secondary schools. Keyboard for Kids, Strings for Kids, and the Dance Preparatory Program offer additional opportunities for precolligate work during the regular academic year.

Special summer offerings include the Musical Theatre Summer Institute, Choral Camp, Guitar Camp, Suzuki Institute, and summer workshops for music teachers. Music Education Day is an annual activity designed to serve South Florida music teachers. About 400 music teachers typically attend this day-long series of clinics and workshops presented by UM faculty and featured guests. The UM School of Music at Salzburg is an annual five-week program for advanced singers and pianists at Salzburg, Austria. UM music faculty are augmented with faculty from other institutions and artists appearing during the Salzburg Festival. Over 59 students from throughout the US and abroad participate in this program, now approaching its 13th year.

School of Music support organizations include Friends of Music, Inc., which is a free-standing not-for-profit corporation that sponsors numerous activities throughout the year and that focuses primarily on volunteerism and on building its music scholarship endowment. The School’s Alumni Association is active both locally and nationally, hosting gatherings in New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago on a rotating basis.

And finally, non-credit special topics enrichment classes are offered for the adult community during evening hours. These extremely popular classes are typically filled to capacity.

Special thanks to all who have established, built, and maintained this array of outreach activities that so well serve the South Florida community and beyond.

honorary doctors,
Celia Cruz and Quincy Jones

The talented and vibrant Celia Cruz, and music impresario Quincy Jones, were honored during the recent University of Miami graduation ceremonies with honorary doctorate of music degrees.

Few individuals have had such a lasting impact on Latin American music, and Afro-Cuban music in particular, as Celia Cruz. Often called the Queen of Latin music, Cruz has dominated the Latin music scene for almost 50 years — from her creative interpretations of mambo at the beginning of her career to her more recently celebrated salsa renditions.

One of four children, Cruz was born in the humble Santo Suárez neighborhood of Havana, Cuba. In 1947, Cruz was rewarded for her innate musical talents when she was asked to perform on a popular Havana radio program. Soon thereafter, Cruz would begin her formal music training by enrolling at Cuba’s National Conservatory of Music.

Three years later, Cruz joined the legendary music group Sonora Matancera, and it was with that group that she successfully completed her first recording. By 1961, Cruz had left her native homeland to seek political asylum in the United States. She then began working with musician Tito Puente and together the duo would capture the hearts and souls of audiences worldwide with a multi-album release later hailed as a musical sensation.

Cruz has received more than 100 awards and honors during her career, including the Smithsonian Institution’s Lifetime Achievement Award, the national Medal of the Arts, and the Hispanic Women Achievers Award. She has earned one Grammy Award and ten Grammy nominations. She holds an honorary degree from Yale University.

Quincy Jones has been called the “master inventor of musical hybrids” due to his ability to successfully synthesize various musical genres — such as hip hop, jazz, and classical music — creating a new, dynamic sound. During his more than 50 years in the industry, Jones has taken on many roles including arranger, composer, stage performer, television producer, actor, and social activist, among others.

Born on Chicago's South Side in 1933, “Q,” as his friends often called him, later moved to the Seattle suburb of Bremerton with his father and stepmother. By the age of 18, Jones had won a scholarship to Boston's Berklee College of Music but quickly dropped out after receiving an offer to play with famed bandleader Lionel Hampton. During the 1950s, Jones moved to New York and wrote musical charts for such talents as Tommy Dorsey, Sarah Vaughan, Count Basie, and Ray Charles.

By 1956, Jones had recorded his first album for ABC Paramount Records. In 1957, he moved to Paris to continue his musical training and studied composition with Nadia Boulanger and Oliver Messiaen. In 1974 Jones produced Michael Jackson’s first solo album Off the Wall, which sold eight million copies, catapulting Jones to the most sought-after producer in Hollywood. In 1982, Jackson and Jones collaborated to produce the album Thriller, which sold 30 million copies worldwide to become the best-selling record of all time.

Jones has received more than 100 honors and awards during his long and rewarding career. He has garnered a record-breaking 76 Grammy nominations, 29 Grammy Awards, An Emmy Award, seven Oscar nominations, and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award.

For their magnificent talents, musical versatility, and for fostering a greater appreciation of music, the University of Miami and the School of Music honor these two musical giants.
Established in the fall of 1984 as the International Festival of the Americas, Festival Miami celebrates its sixteenth season in 1999. Throughout the last decade and a half, the Festival has become a cornerstone on the South Florida cultural calendar. By drawing on international, national and local talent, Festival Miami reflects the global nature of the community, and the University of Miami.

Unique in the nation, Festival Miami is the largest musical presentation of its size and scope undertaken by a private university. It combines three distinctive elements: performers of international renown, the School of Music's performing faculty, and some of the School's most highly regarded student performing ensembles. During the last fifteen years Festival Miami has featured important world, U.S., and Florida premieres. Artists at the beginning of their careers have bowed on the Festival stage in their U.S. debuts; and artists, long absent from the U.S. concert scene, have returned in triumphant performances.

The 1999 season promises to be exciting and innovative. On September 18 the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of conductor Thomas Sleeper; and the University of Miami Concert Jazz Band, under the direction of Whit Sidener, opens the Festival. Joining the UM Symphony Orchestra and Jazz Band is guest conductor Maurice Peress in a Tribute to Duke Ellington, marking the 100th anniversary of the jazz great's birth. Peress is a renowned authority on the works of Duke Ellington. He has published and recorded numerous editions of Ellington's orchestral and other works, several of which will be performed in Miami for the first time. Maestro Peress will present a public lecture on the life and music of Ellington. As if that were not enough, two former members of the Ellington orchestra, Barry Lee Hall and Sir Roland Hanna, will join Peress. These musicians bring with them an extraordinary expertise that will add distinction to their performances.

Other events include a Chopin mini-festival featuring Kevin Kenner, winner of the International Chopin Competition in Warsaw and two nights of hot Brazilian jazz with internationally renowned Teo Cardoso and his eleven-piece ensemble. In association with ASCAP, a three-day presentation exploring the makings of Musical Theatre will bring Academy Award winning composer/lyricist Stephen Schwartz, and the Tony Award winning writing team of lyricist Lynn Ahrens and composer Stephen Flaherty to the Gusman Hall Concert stage. Joining them is actress/singer Karen Morrow. The three-day event will culminate in a concert performance by Schwartz, Ahrens & Flaherty, and Morrow. In celebration of the 100th anniversary of Mexican composers Silvestre Revueltas and Carlos Chávez the international string quartet, Quarteto Latinoamericano, will return to Festival Miami. Also joining this year's Festival is vocal soloist Kevin Mahogany; trumpet soloist Kenny Wheeler; the Vertavo String Quartet; The Philharmonic Orchestra of Lima, Peru; composer Elliott Schwartz, and the virtuoso Assad Brothers duo guitar team.

The Festival closes on October 16th with the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra and piano soloist Ivan Davis, performing the Schumann Piano Concerto.

A myriad of concerts by faculty, and other guest artists will round out the Festival Miami 1999 season. A complete schedule of events follows. For more information regarding ticket purchases please call the Festival Miami office, 305-284-4940. Don't Miss a Beat of the School's International Celebration of Music!

All concerts take place at Maurice Gusman Concert Hall, UM Campus Coral Gables, 1314 Miller Dr., Coral Gables, Florida 33124 unless otherwise noted.

Florida legislature adds UM music engineering

The Florida Legislature recently approved a post-secondary subsidy for the University of Miami School of Music to provide students with a chance to take courses not available at public colleges and universities in Florida. "The subsidies are provided in areas where the needs are unmet by the state system," said Mr. Dallet, who is the assistant director of the state's Post-secondary Education Planning Commission. "The University of Miami's music engineering bachelor's degree program -- billed as one of the top of its kind in the country -- is a high-demand program where there is not sufficient space or programs reasonably in proximity to meet employers' demands." Florida residents accepted to the program pay public-level tuition fees, with the state making up the difference. The measure cost the state about $321,000 in the 1998-99 school year. A similar amount was earmarked for the 1999-2000 academic year.

13th annual Salzburg program moves to new location

The University of Miami School of Music Program, conducted in cooperation with Salzburg College, a small Austrian institution where courses are taught in English by European faculty, changed locations in the city of Salzburg this past summer. After hosting the summer program for twelve years at the Meierhof of Schloss Leopoldskron, Salzburg College has relocated to the heart of the old city of Salzburg. It occupies a 16th century town house, and is situated on the Ursulinenplatz, a small square, flanked by a historic city gate and one of Salzburg's famous Baroque churches.

This summer, students from the program competed to present recitals at the Carolino Augusteum Museum, the Sacellum of the university and at Schloss Leopoldskron. The city's rich musical heritage is reflected in the great variety of concerts and other musical events throughout the year including the prestigious Salzburg Festival which makes an ideal setting for the UM School's summer music studies program. Students also attend many of the Festival's concerts and opera productions.

Faculty for this summer included University of Miami professors Lorine Buffington, voice and director of the program; Paul Posnak, piano and vocal accompanying; Susan Lindebiad, Alexander Technique for singers and pianists Franklin Summers, voice; and Russell Young, vocal coach. Additional faculty included voice teachers and coaches from colleges, universities, and conservatories in the United States and Europe.

WTMI Features Festival Miami

WTMI-FM (93.1) broadcast a series of ten one-hour shows featuring University of Miami ensembles, faculty, and guest artists who have appeared, or will be appearing, on Festival Miami. The hosts for the show were Thomas Sleeper, director of orchestral activities at UM, and WTMI personality Mark Hartt. The series was broadcast on Sunday evening at 7:00 p.m. from July 11 through September 12.
"comin' home" released by 'cane records

What do pop artist Jon Secada, renowned musician Bruce Hornsby, jazz guitarist Pat Metheny, country singer Lari White, bassist Will Lee, and jazz vocalist Carmen Lundy have in common? They are all graduates of the University of Miami School of Music and they all contributed their talents to the School's first alumni compilation CD, Comin' Home, which was released on Tuesday, May 4.

The CD was produced by 'Cane Records, the University of Miami's student-run recording label, and features 11 original tracks by the alumni artists who donated their talents to the project. The cuts represent a variety of musical genres including pop, jazz, and country. The CD retails for $14 and is available for sale locally at Virgin Megastore, Spec's Music, and through the internet at www.canerecords.com.

Comin' home is the tenth CD to be released by 'Cane Records which was started by a group of students from UM's Music Business and Entertainment Industry program in 1993. At that time, James Progris, director of the program, wanted to give students a challenge -- to run their own record label. When 'Cane Records was launched, it became the first student-run music label in the country.

Extreme Strings, a workshop designed and organized by Glenn Basham, associate professor of instrumental performance (violin), and held on the University of Miami campus on February 19-21, was a groundbreaking celebration of creativity in string playing. From Irish fiddling techniques to Baroque improvisation and digital violin technology, string players, teachers, and clinicians from across the country converged to explore new ways to make and teach music on string instruments. The event was co-sponsored by the University of Miami and the American String Teachers Association. Among the list of clinicians included two of America's best known jazz violinists, John Blake and Matt Glaser. Others included Drew Tretick, electric violin; James Kelly, Irish fiddle; Chris Azzara, jazz piano; Paul Erhard, double bass; and Frederico Britos, jazz violin. Among the 25 scheduled events, participants were invited to experience a live studio recording session, directed by UM jazz faculty member Vince Maggio, and a reading orchestra session led by Thomas Sleeper, conductor of the UM Symphony.

Maggie Rossi was recently appointed coordinator of annual fund and constituent relations. She will be working with the School of Music Alumni Association and Friends of Music to develop activities and serve as a liaison with the School. Additionally, Rossi will assist Dean Hipp with fundraising efforts in the areas of music scholarships, Annual Fund, and Festival Miami. Rossi brings to the position an extensive background in the entertainment and special events industry having worked for several major cruise lines and resorts. Most recently, she served the University in the graduate studies office of the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science. Prior to that, she spearheaded the development of multilingual entertainment programs and Broadway style revues for Costa Cruise Lines, as well as interactive events for audiences of all ages at Bally's Casino and Resort in Las Vegas. Rossi completed her undergraduate studies at Regis College, where she double-majored in business and sociology and is currently working on completing an MS at UM in the School of Education with a focus on special education/learning disabilities.
dance minor added this fall

The School of Music's dance program will offer a dance minor beginning this fall. The dance education faculty specializing in a variety of dance forms will teach ballet and contemporary dance techniques, creative dance, teaching methodology, dance history and theory, folk and ballroom dance, and dance therapy. The dance faculty include Kathyanne Londono (chair), Gilberto Almaguer, Barbara Frankfurt, Nan Imbesi, Carol Kaminsky, and Karen Stewart.

joyce jordan receives excellence in teaching and scholarship award

Joyce Jordan, professor of music education and chair of the department of music education and music therapy, was awarded the 1999 Philip Frost Award for Excellence in Teaching and Scholarship at the School of Music graduation recognition ceremony in May. The $5,000 award, established to recognize the achievement of the School's most distinguished faculty, is funded by the Patricia L. Frost Professorship in Music Endowment.

Since joining the faculty in 1982, Dr. Joyce Jordan has been primarily involved in the teacher training program, teaching elementary and secondary music education methods courses, and serving as supervisor for all general music internships. In addition, she teaches graduate courses in early childhood music education and in world music.

Dr. Jordan engages in research on the music capabilities of young children and is published in the major journals in the field of music education. She has served on the editorial boards of several journals, and currently is the research review editor for the journal, Early Childhood Connections, a position she has held since the founding of the journal in 1995.

Dr. Jordan has presented research and served as a clinician at national, state, and local conferences, and has served in important leadership roles for a number of professional organizations. She served as president for the Florida College Music Educators Association (FCMEA) in 1988. During her term as FCMEA president, she founded Research Perspectives in Music Education, which is the research journal for that association. In 1997 she was given the Florida College Teacher of the Year Award by FMEA.

In 1996-1998, Jordan served as president of Early Childhood Music and Movement Association, a national organization devoted to advocacy for music and movement in early childhood, and remains a very visible national leader in that association.

In recognition of and appreciation for exemplary teaching and scholarly productivity that have earned international stature, Dr. Joyce Jordan has made significant contributions as a teacher, scholar, and leader in the music in early childhood movement, and has brought distinction to the department of music education at the University of Miami School of Music.
Fred Wickstrom retires

Fred A. Wickstrom, professor and program director for percussion, retired at the end of the 1998-99 academic year after serving the University of Miami School of Music for 39 years. A special evening honoring Wickstrom, hosted by the School's department of instrumental performance, was held at the University of Miami Faculty Club. Many of his colleagues, former students, and friends attended the gala reception. Wickstrom grew up in Chicago, attended their public schools, and graduated from Northwestern University with a bachelor of arts degree in 1953. He received a master of science degree from University of Illinois in 1960 with a major in music education. Between the two degrees he attended Chicago Teachers College, Cosmopolitan School of Music, Loyola University, and Roosevelt University. He joined the faculty at the University of Miami in 1960. Over the years Wickstrom established unique curriculum models for teaching percussion. His innovative ideas have been replicated by many schools. In addition to teaching applied percussion and conducting percussion ensembles, Wickstrom was program director and associate director of the department of instrumental performance and the Division of Music Arts, the School's preparatory program. His ensembles performed at national and state music conventions, and in concerts in L'Aquila, Italy. As a performer, Wickstrom performed with Festival Miami and Miami Chamber Symphony, and performed in recording sessions and concerts in the United States, Mexico, Central and South America, and Europe with pianist Raul Di Blasio. He was also a national clinician for Remo Inc., Yamaha, and Sabian. Wickstrom gave clinics and master classes throughout the United States, including Florida Music Educators Association convention in 1993, Disney Invitational in 1993, Mid-West Band and Orchestra Clinic in 1994, and Southern Division MENC in 1994.

In addition to his playing and teaching, Wickstrom served the School and University as a member of the Faculty Senate, Faculty Senate Council, and School of Music Council. Fred Wickstrom and Kay have been married for 39 years. Their four adult children, Mark, Liz, Amy, and Chris, reside in Miami.

faculty news

Joseph Abbati, lecturer in music engineering technology, is doing the music and sound design for a children's interactive entertainment to be published by Mattel Media.

Keith Aleo, lecturer in instrumental performance (percussion), presented two solo/chamber music recitals in 1998; one was with fellow Florida Philharmonic musician and bassoonist, Henry Skolnick, and another with University of Miami trombonist, Tim Conner. On the recital was one of Aleo's compositions entitled a tribute to E.E., for trombone and percussion with text from the poems of E.E. Cummings. The work will be published by BHE Inc. In addition, Aleo's Performance Studies for Two, Volume I, published by HoneyRock Publishing was released in Spring 1999. He also premiered and conducted Daniel McCarthy's Hammerstring with the Interlochen Arts Camp percussion ensemble. He serves on the Percussive Arts Society's International Convention Planning Committee.

Glenn Basham, associate professor of instrumental performance (violin), is completing his fifth season as concertmaster of the Naples Philharmonic, performing one hundred concerts in a year in venues across South Florida. Basham was soloist with the Broward Symphony Orchestra and premiered John Van der Slice's Dreams for amplified violin and percussion with the University of Miami Percussion Ensemble, Keith Aleo conducting. He appeared with the Clematis Theater in West Palm Beach with jazz legend Ira Sullivan and guitarist Simon Salz.

Bonelli has been a member of the Bee Gees rhythm section. He has appeared with the Bee Gees on the Tonight Show, Late Night with David Letterman, Today Show, and VH1 Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. He also recorded with the Bee Gees on their live One Night Only concert CD and video tape. This past year Bonelli has traveled with the Bee Gees to perform in concert venues in Europe, South America, South Africa, New Zealand, and Australia.

Lorine Buffington, professor of vocal performance and director of the University of Miami School of Music at Salzburg Summer Program, was a faculty member for the Vocal Arts Workshop at the Festival of the Arts held at Black Hills State University in Spearfish (SD). The workshop featured classes in diction and vocal interpretation, opera repertoire, recital presence, body movement, building a career; and opera and recital performances. Buffington has been appointed to serve as Discipline Coordinator for the vocal division of the National Foundation for Advancement in the Arts "Arts Recognition and Talent Search" program for ARTS Week 2000.

Frank Cooper, research professor of musicology and keyboard performance (harpischord) received the National Federation of Music Clubs' Centennial Citation for "Contributions to the musical and cultural life of the country and of the world at large" in St. Louis in May. Earlier this year Cooper was inducted in the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi and into the music honorary Pi Kappa Lambda. Cooper lectured on "Certainty in Romantic Music" at MacMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario in November and, in February, on "Baroque Variations" at the State University of New York at Purchase during a weekend built around Bach's Goldberg Variations. He oversaw the sixth annual "Mainly Mozart" festival of the Coral Gables Cultural Affairs Council, appeared as harpsichordist at the Vizcaya Museum, delivered his fourteenth annual lecture series for the Naples Art Association and participated for his twenty-sixth season in the Early Music Summerfest of Indiana's Festival Music Society.

Kimberly Daniel de Acha, adjunct associate professor of vocal performance, performed in the world premiere of 37 Postcards, featured in the role written for her by South Florida playwright, Michael McKeever: Daniel de Acha presented a Festival Miami concert, featuring recently edited cabaret songs of Eric Satie, and other new works, including the world premiere of Ringing the Bells, composed by University of Miami composer, John Van der Slice.
November, Daniel de Acha conducted a vocal workshop for the Miami City Ballet Training Center. In January, she received outstanding reviews for her performance in A. R. Gurney’s What I Did Last Summer, directed for New Theatre by UM faculty member, Bruce Lecure, and featuring UM students Michael Becker, Andrew Goldenberg, and Nicole Dalton. In September, Daniel de Acha will be seen in the Pulitzer Prize winning play, How I learned to Drive, by Paula Vogel.

Nicholas DeCarbo, associate professor of music education and associate dean for administration, was the music director and conductor for the 17th Annual South Florida Honor Band Festival in February and guest conduct ed 20 high school bands during the past academic year. He presented two conducting workshops, one to participating teachers/conductors at the New World School of the Arts and another to Broward high school band directors. DeCarbo is co-editor of Research Perspectives in Music Education, the research journal of the Florida Music Educators Association. He presented recent research relevant to first-year teachers to the Florida Collegiate Music Educators during their annual fall conference and to researchers at the Southern Division-Florida Music Educators In-Service Conference on associate teachers. He continues to serve as editor of Score, the School of Music’s newsletter.

Lucas Drew, professor of instrumental performance (double bass) had his arrangement of Henry Eccle’s Sonata No. 2 in E Minor for Double Bass (cello) and Piano (harpischord) and the Complete Double Bass Parts from the Camber Music Repertoire Series, Volume I published by the University of Miami Music Publishers (UUMP) press. He is advisor of the International Archive of Double Bass Recordings which was established in 1997 to honor Drew. The archive, a collection of tapes, LP’s, CD’s and videos designed to assist students and professionals in their study of performing artists and the repertoire of the double bass, was made possible through a gift from University of Miami alumni, Paula and David Bonner. Ariadna Barbe-Villa is the first recipient of the Lucas Drew Music Scholarship. The Lucas Drew Scholarship is designed to provide an annual scholarship of $1,500 to a double bass student at the University of Miami School of Music. It was established by Richard Howell, University of Miami School of Music graduate and co-owner of Magic City Records as part of the Richard and Susan Howell Fund at the Dade Community Foundation.

Rene Gonzalez, associate professor of instrumental performance (guitar), completed a CD entitled Rene Gonzalez in Homage on the EFM label. This past year he conducted workshops at the Alabama State Music Educators convention and at the Utah State Music Educators convention, and presented recitals and clinics at Whitney Young High School in Chicago and at Spanish Fork High School (Utah). Gonzalez gave master classes at Columbia University, Brigham Young University, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and the Las Vegas Guitar Society. He is present and co-founder of the Guitar Alliance of Florida, an organization for creating performance venues, lectures, and forums for professional and amateur guitarists. He also coordinates the annual Guitar, Bass Guitar, and Drumset Camp held each summer on the UM campus, co-sponsored by Ellis Family Music Co. Inc.

Gary Green, professor and chair of the department of instrumental performance and director of bands, was the conductor of the National Honor Band at the Bands of America National Band Camp this past academic season. In the fall he evaluated bands in Texas and Illinois, and in the spring evaluated bands for the Bands of America National Concert Band Festival and the Florida Bandmasters Association all-state festival. He led the University of Miami Wind Ensemble in a concert before the Florida Music Educators/Southern Division of MENC convention in Tampa in January, and on a tour of Florida. He was the guest conductor of the Texas Honor Band in Houston, the Texas All State Symphonic Band at the Texas Music Educators convention in San Antonio, and for honor bands at Richardson (TX), Arlington (TX), Houston (TX), Gainesville (FL), Miami (FL), and Fort Worth (TX).
Lauderdale (FL). Green continues to serve as the conductor of the Greater Miami Symphonic Band and a member of the clinic committee for the Florida Bandmasters Association.

Ross Harbaugh, associate professor of instrumental performance (cello), taught in Switzerland this summer at the Margess Institute and the Robert Rozek Master Classes in Yverdon. In addition to touring with the Bergonzi Quartet, Harbaugh performed this year with Yehuda Hanani on his Close Encounters Series at the Biltmore Hotel, gave concerts as principal cellist with the Miami Bach Society and the Miami Chamber Orchestra, and performed a solo recital at Gusman Concert Hall with Bernice Harbaugh and Pamela McConnell. He organized a Baroque Dance Workshop with world-renowned Baroque expert Wendy Hilton and helped organize the Second Annual Cello Mania, a cello workshop/exchange with the Harid Conservatory. He performed the Rococo Variations with the Broward Symphony and served as principal cellist of the Symphony of the Americas in March.

Stephanie Haun, lecturer in music business and entertainment industries, presented a paper at the University of Richmond’s School of Law Symposium entitled “The Electronic Global Marketplace: Are Traditional Legal Principles Adequate for the Emerging Cyber Society?” The paper is forthcoming in the next issue of the Richmond Journal of Law & Technology.

Alan Hood, lecturer in studio music and jazz (trumpet) and musicology, has been appointed principal jazz trumpet of the Palm Beach Pops Orchestra, which has performed with artists Freddie Cole, Bucky and John Pizzarelli, and Doc Severinsen in recent concerts. Hood has also recently performed freelance engagements with Vic Damone, the Woody Herman Orchestra, the Harry James Orchestra, Manhattenville; Bobby Caldwell, the Arturo Sandoval Big Band, the Richie Cole Alto Madness Orchestra, and in a 40-piece orchestra accompanying legendary singer Ray Charles for a Lighthouse for the Blind benefit concert. Hood appears on recent compact disc releases of Ed Calle (Sunset Harbor) and the Dennis Noddy Orchestra (A Tribute to Stan Kenton) and performed as a featured trumpet soloist with the University of Miami Salsa Ensemble in April. Hood has joined the family of United Musical Instruments as an educator/artist/clinician and will represent their new line of Conn "Vintage One" series professional trumpets and flugelhorns.

Joyce Jordan, professor and chair of the department of music education and music therapy, was this year’s recipient of the Abraham Frost Excellence in Teaching and Research Award. Dean William Hipp presented the award at the 1999 Graduation Ceremony in May. The award carries with it a $5,000 gift.

Jordan was a presenter at several conferences during the past academic year. In November she was a guest speaker at the National Association of Schools of Music annual professional meeting held in Boston. Her session topic was Early Childhood Music Education I: The Professional Landscape. She also was a presenter at the annual national conference of the Orff-Schulwerk Association held in Tampa (FL). Her presentation was Music and Nature—A Successful pairing for the Preschooler. In January she spoke at the Music Educators National Conference Southern Division/Florida Music Educators Association; the presentation was entitled, Music and Movement Integrates a Child’s Eyes and Ears. In February she was asked to share the same presentation with participants at the Early Childhood Music and Movement Association’s regional meeting held in Ft. Lauderdale (FL).

Jordan was invited to do two teacher-training workshops in Florida. She worked with pre-kindergarten teachers and para-professionals in Dade County in February and with preschool and primary teachers in Duval County in March. She also participated in early childhood teacher-training music programs for Musikgarten in April and June.

Jordan received a grant in the amount of $20,000 for an ongoing research project in collaboration with Dade County Public Schools and the Florida First Start/Even Start Literacy Program from the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences, Inc.
project will fund music instruction for parents and children in five schools. The project will begin in the fall and continue throughout the year. It is hoped that music exposure during the first four years will benefit children’s total learning development. Sigma Alpha Iota Alumni Chapter presented her with a check for $390 at their luncheon in April. This money will also be used in conjunction with the Even Start Program.

Myra Jordan, assistant professor and program director of music therapy, was given the James L. McLamore Award to pursue research in music therapy during Summer 1999. She worked with patients with spinal cord injuries on measuring the effects of music and imagery on subjects’ treadmill walking abilities. Jordan is also serving as music therapy representative for the grant Project ABCs: Interdisciplinary Fundamentals in Assistive Technology at Mailman Center for Child Development. Jordan recently co-hosted the symposium, Music Medicine: Enhancing Health Through Music, a two-day event sponsored jointly by the UM Schools of Medicine and Music. The symposium, held at the Hotel Intercontinental in Miami, was the first joint venture between the two schools. A second symposium targeting methods of pain control using music therapy and other alternative healing modalities is planned for Spring 2000. Jordan is active in the American Music Therapy Association (AMTA) and was recently re-elected to that association’s Assembly of Delegates. She represents the Southeast on the AMTA Education Committee and chairs the AMTA Student Affairs Advisory Board. She will be co-hosting the Southeastern Region of the AMTA annual meeting at UM in Spring 2000.

Dennis Kam, professor and chair of the department of music theory and composition, had premiere performances of his String Quartet No. 3 by the Bergonzzi Quartet at Festival Miami in September and Prelude, Puzzles, and Postlude for mandolin, tuba, and chamber ensemble by the South Florida Youth Symphony in February. Kam was the guest composer of the Birmingham (AL) Art Music Alliance in January where his Sonata for cello and piano was performed.

Faculty members Margaret Donahue (clarinet) and John Olah (tuba) and graduate student Amy Tarantino (piano) accompanied Kam to Hawaii for a series of concerts. Kam’s compositions were performed in Honolulu on the Hawaii Public Radio station, K-HPR, and at Society of Composers, Inc. Conference at the University of Hawaii.

Gary Lindsay, associate professor of studio music and jazz and program director of studio jazz writing, had his composition entitled Are We Still Dreaming performed by the University of Miami Concert Jazz Band. Lindsay was involved in a number of recording projects as an arranger. His work can be heard on albums by Bose Feliciano and Olga Tanon and Millie. His arrangements were also heard in the half-time shows of the South Miami High School Marching Band.

Kay Lowe, lecturer in vocal performance (soprano), joined the University of Miami School of Music faculty in the fall of 1998. She comes to UM from the university of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where she served on the faculty for six years. Lowe will he heard next season in the role of Marcellina in Fidelio and will present solo concerts in Calgary and Montreal in the Spring.

Diane Mauch, lecturer in vocal performance, completed the tenth original opera project with fifth graders at Carroltan School in Coconut Grove (FL). The students write the libretto and lyrics; compose the melodies; design and execute the sets; plan costumes, makeup and lighting; and provide their own public relations. They also perform the opera. The opera project is part of the regular fifth-grade curriculum. Mauch also served as education director at the Florida Grand Opera, where she facilitated original opera events and opera literature studies with many schools in Miami-Dade County. She has also been awarded Permanent Professional Music Certification from the Music Teachers National Association.

Vince Maggio, adjunct associate professor of studio music and jazz (jazz piano), and University of Miami alumnus Mark Colby have recorded the CD entitled Reunion. The album has had stellar reviews and is steadily climbing the jazz charts. United States and European tours for the duo are in the planning stage as is their next CD project.

Pamela McConnell, professor of instrumental performance (viola) and program director (strings), taught viola and chamber music at Sewanebec Summer Music Center in Sewanee (TN) this July. This followed her appearance with the Bergonzzi String Quartet at the Pine Mountain Music Festival in upper Peninsula Michigan and the Quartet's residency at the Madeline Island Music Camp in Wisconsin. Professor McConnell has performed as principal violist with the Miami Bach Society and Miami Chamber Symphony, and assisted Ross and Bernice Harbaugh in a recital in March. The Bergonzzi Quartet compact disc of three Mendelssohn string quartets is scheduled for release in the fall 1999.

Robert Parker, professor emeritus of musicology and associate dean of graduate studies, chaired a session at the Sonneck Society for American Music in Ft. Worth (TX) on March 13, entitled Carlos Chávez: A Centennial Celebration. Joining in the session was Per Brevig, former principal trombonist with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, who spoke about the Chávez trombone concerto, which he commissioned and premiered in the composer's final conducting appearance. Also participating was composer/pianist Max Lifchitz, of SUNY-Albany, performing and discussing selected piano compositions by Chávez. Parker surveyed the Mexican composer's output in his presentation - "Carlos Chávez: A Panoply of Styles." Mexico's Center for Music Research has invited Parker to participate in a conference commemorating the centenary year of two of the country's most illustrious composers: Carlos Chávez and Silvestre Revueltas. A number of musicians and scholars from the United States and Latin America will join forces in this four-day event in September 1999. Parker's second book on Carlos Chávez, Carlos Chávez: A Guide to Research, was published by Garland Publishing, Inc. last July.

Eric Peterson joined the Albert Pick Music Library in November as assistant music librarian. Peterson is responsible for developing, recommending, and implementing policies and procedures necessary for cataloging music materials, as well as collecting and reporting relevant statistics. Peterson holds a Master of Science with a Specialization in Music Librarianship. He is a member of the Music Library Association, International Double Reed Society, and the American Library Association. He has reading knowledge of French, and has bibliographic knowledge in German and Chinese.
William Pirkle, assistant professor of music engineering technology, is completing a software design package for K & S Associates, a nuclear medicine calibration laboratory, and continuing work on two books dealing with audio hardware and software.

Kenneth Pohlmann, professor of music engineering technology, delivered the keynote address at the Technology Dinner at National Public Radio's annual Public Radio Conference in Washington, DC. He discussed the market forces of convergence and argued that history is not a good predictor of our technological future. He also presented a series of lectures for Tweeter Inc. in numerous US cities, and helped to develop the sound systems in new BMW and Hyundai automobiles. Pohlmann also served as an expert witness for the Recording Industry Association of America in the district Court of Los Angeles and also testified for Microsoft Corporation in Federal Tax Court in Seattle.

Alan D. Reitman, adjunct assistant professor of music therapy and director of clinical practica, has helped to establish several new practicum sites for University of Miami music therapy students. These include the Perdue Medical Center and Human Resources Health Center, the Women's Center at Jackson Memorial Hospital, and ICARE Baypoint Schools for juvenile offenders. Reitman has been elected president of the Florida Association for Music Therapy (FAMT). He has been active in developing community awareness about music therapy through inviting parental involvement in regional FAMT meetings and hosting a music therapy booth at "Lovefest," an annual charity event in Hollywood (FL), and has presented "Overcoming Music Performance Anxiety" to the International Association for Psychology and the Performing Arts, and for Miami-Dade County music educators during the School of Music's Music Education Day. He has also been elected to the editorial board of Music Therapy Perspectives, a national quarterly journal of the American Music Therapy Association. Additionally, Reitman has developed a working relationship with Hollywood Music Group, Inc., and Songwriters in the Round, Inc. to provide music therapy students with knowledge about various song writing styles and techniques, and to increase area musician's awareness of music therapy.

Kenon Renfrow, professor of keyboard performance and program director of piano pedagogy, was the featured speaker on the Distinguished Lecturer in Piano Pedagogy series at the University of Oklahoma and at Bob Jones University in Greenville (SC). Renfrow also presented workshops at the Florida State Music Teachers convention, the Music Teachers National Association convention, and for more than a dozen music teacher groups throughout the nation. Recent publications include Piano 101, Books 1 and 2, an exciting group course for adults who want to play piano for fun; Repertoire and Ragtime, an intermediate collection of classical pieces with ragtime arrangements and a Ragtime Christmas, an intermediate collection of Christmas favorites arranged in a ragtime style. Renfrow continues to serve as advisor for "Random Access," a regular feature in American Music Teacher magazine that deals with all aspects of technology for teachers, and as staff reviewer for Piano & Keyboard magazine.

Robert Rozek, adjunct assistant professor of instrumental performance (violin), is completing his fourth year as a member of the School of Music faculty, teaching violin, chamber music, and string pedagogy. Rozek is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music where he studied with Ivan Galamian. He continued his studies with Nathan Milstein in New York, London, and Zurich. Rozek, whose home is in Zurich, also maintains a very busy schedule of concerts and master classes in Europe. He is a faculty member of Margess International, a summer school where many gifted string players of Europe and Asia meet each summer for classes and concerts. In addition, Rozek gives master classes in Yverdon, Switzerland. This past year he founded "I Giovani," a string ensemble of talented young string players from the Miami area. The purpose of the group is to explore the chamber music repertoire from the Baroque to the modern era. Next season, Rozek will be a guest artist teacher at the Guildhall School of Music in London. He will also give master classes at the Interlochen School for the Arts in Michigan. This summer, Rozek gave two recitals in Switzerland, one in Zurich and the other in Yverdon. He played all three solo partitas of J. S. Bach; a recently discovered work of Tartini; works by Paganini; and the Liszt Mephisto Waltz, transcribed by Nathan Milstein.

Steve Rucker, lecturer in studio music and jazz (jazz percussion), had two articles published this past year; one entitled "The Advancing Jazz-Pop-Rock Drummer" published by Ellis Family Music Co., Inc., and "Orchestrating Paradiddles" for the February issue of Percussive Notes. Rucker was a teacher at the summer music camp for middle and high school students at Nova Southeastern University and presented a clinic for the Allenby Campus in Johannesburg, South Africa. Rucker made several appearances in concerts with the Bee Gees in Dublin, London, Buenos Aires, Pretoria, New York, Auckland, and Sidney, and performed with Barry Gibb in a "Tribute for Sinatra" with orchestra and big band.

Rosalina Sackstein, professor emeritus of keyboard performance, has been named to Who's Who Among America's Teachers.

Jo-Michael Scheibe, professor and director of the choral studies program, was artist-in-residence for the IX Annual Summer Institute in Choral Conducting in Brisbane, Australia and at the University of South Florida during the 1998-99 academic year. He also conducted the Missouri All-State Choir and the North Carolina Institute for Choral Arts Choir. Other activities included judging the graduate conducting competition at the American Choral Director's Association (ACDA) national convention in Chicago, a panel member of the ACDA monograph on quality choral literature for high school mixed choirs, chairperson of the Southern Division ACDA audition committee, and guest clinician for the Missouri Summer Workshop of MENC on conducting. He also edited 12 compositions for publication with Plymouth and Walton Music Publishers. Scheibe continues to serve as artistic director and conductor of the Master Chorale of Tampa Bay where he prepared performances for the Florida Orchestra of Prokofiev's Alexander Nevsky and Beethoven's Missa Solemnis.

Thomas Sleeper, associate professor of instrumental performance and conductor of the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra, was awarded a Max Orovitz Summer Award.

John Van der Slice, professor of theory and composition, has an essay on composer Tobias Picker in the forthcoming new Groves Dictionary of Music. He also has had three new works premiered: Ringing the Bells, written for soprano Kimberly da Acha and pianist Zelia Chueke; Dreams for amplified violin and six percussionists, written for Glenn Basham with the help from a Max Orovitz Research Award; and Solo for Cello in May 1999 at Birmingham (AL), written for Craig Hultgren. Van der Slice attended the SCI Region VII Conference in Honolulu in April and the IRCAM Summer Academy in Paris in June. He was awarded a $5,000 State of Florida Individual Fellowship Grant for 1999, presented by the Florida Division of Cultural Affairs.

Robert Weiner, adjunct assistant professor of instrumental performance (oboe), performed the Strauss oboe concerto with the Atlantic Chamber Orchestra. In March Weiner was again soloist with the Atlantic Chamber Orchestra in the world premier of Norman Dello Joio's Divertimento. With the Miami Symphony and Carol Navaire flutist, Weiner performed the Double Concerto by Antonio Salieri and the Mozart Sinfonia Concertante. He is principal oboist with both the Atlantic Chamber Orchestra and the Miami Symphony.

In March, with other UM School of Music faculty members, Weiner recorded a CD of twentieth century music for woodwinds and piano on the Altarus label. In February, Weiner conducted a clinic on oboe techniques at the South Florida Honor Band Festival, and in May, presented oboe masterclasses at the Dreyfoos School of Performing Arts in West Palm Beach (FL).
Instrumental Performance

Ross Harbaugh, associate professor of instrumental performance (cello), organized a Baroque Dance Workshop with support from an Instrumental Advancement Grant awarded by the University of Miami. The workshop had 40 students participating from the School of Music, Theater Arts, Art History, World History, and Dance. The workshop was led by renowned Baroque dance specialist Wendy Hilton, who was assisted by Thomas Baird and Paige Whitley-Bauguess. Students learned to dance the Baroque minuet, bourrée, gavotte, and sarabande. Music students supplied live music for dancing, including the formal dance concert that occurred on the last day of the workshop. Baird and Whitley-Bauguess performed a dance recital in costume for the students and guests.

The Bergonzzi Quartet performed at Kansas State University in September and gave the World Premiere of professor Dennis Kam's Quartet No. 2 at Festival Miami. They also performed at the Society of the Four Arts in Palm Beach (FL), at the Seaside Institute in Seaside (FL), and at the Mainly Mozart Concerts with professor Frank Cooper at the Colonnade Hotel in May. They returned to the Pine Mountain Music Festival this summer where they gave quartet recitals, contemporary music concerts, children's concerts, and served as principal players in the Pine Mountain Festival Opera Orchestra and Symphony Orchestra. The Quartet also taught and performed at the Madeline Island Music Camp in Wisconsin. The Bergonzzi Quartet will release their all-Mendelssohn Quartets CD this fall and are planning concert tours to Washington, DC and New York. Scott Flavin has joined the Quartet as second violinist.

Keyboard Performance

Faculty members J. B. Floyd, Teresa Escandon, and Rosalina Sackstein, and graduate students Carla Mia Davis, Luci Ann Dow, and Amy Tarantino performed in Festival Chopin as part of a collaboration between Catholic University in Lima, Peru and the University of Miami School of Music. The four-concert series was held in June.

Music Education and Music Therapy

The department of music education and music therapy continues to sponsor several events in collaboration with the South Florida public and private schools. In November, in conjunction with the orchestra and string programs, UM hosted the sixth annual University of Miami Honor Orchestra. The guest conductor/clinician was Timothy Bergman, currently the assistant conductor for the Baton Rouge Symphony. Approximately 103 students from 26 Florida schools participated. Attendance this year increased by 33 students.

In January, the music education program hosted the 18th annual Music Education Day for South Florida music educators. Clinicians included Kenneth Phillips, University of Iowa, and Matthew Daugherty, music specialist, Dade County Public Schools. University of Miami faculty participating were Robert Rozek, string performance; Alan Reitman, music therapy; Rene Gonzalez, guitar performance, Myra Jordan, music therapy; Nicholas DeCarbo and Richard Fiese, music education. Doctoral students in music education presenting were Patricia Ooi, keyboard, and Jeannine Mongeon, string performance. Two-hundred and fifty teachers from Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, and Monroe counties attended sessions in general, choral, and instrumental instruction.

In February, the 17th Annual South Florida Honor Band Festival was hosted by the music education and band programs.
The guest conductor was Frederick Fennell, the principal guest conductor of the Dallas Wind Symphony, Laureate conductor of the Tokyo Kosei Wind Orchestra in Japan, and professor emeritus of the University of Miami School of Music (1965-1980). Faculty conductors were Nicholas DeCarbo and Michael Mann, with Gary Green, UM Director of Bands, conducting the University of Miami Wind Ensemble. One hundred eighty-four students from 51 schools in Florida participated in the two-day event.

The department continues to sponsor UM MusicTime, an outreach music enrichment program for children birth to 7 years old. Enrollment for the three semesters was 1,040 children. This year, under the leadership of Joy Galliford, the administrative director for the program, parents enrolled in the Key Biscayne classes adopted children in one of the Even Start music classes and provided Christmas presents for each of the children. MusicTime parents also supported a project for disadvantaged teen ands mothers through donations amounting to $500.

Collaborative efforts between Chrystal Hartigan, co-founder of Songwriters in the Round, Inc., Hollywood East Music Group, Inc., and the University of Miami Music Therapy Program have resulted in an educational song-writing series for music education, therapy, performance, and business students and members of the Greater Miami community. The first song-writing series took place on February 19 and 28 and featured the “Blues” with Sheba Israel and 1992 BB King blues guitarist Ken Minahan. They shared information on the history of the blues and their style of blues songwriting, and sang several tunes. Amy Carol Webb, well-known area “songweaver” and 1998 Singer Songwriter Award winner and Richie Supa, Grammy Award winner who has written for Gladys Knight, Glenn Campbell, and Aerosmith, were featured in the March meeting. Music therapists work with a wide variety of client populations, including children with developmental disabilities, adolescents and adults with chemical dependence and emotional disturbance, and older adults with degenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's. Music therapy involves a great deal of song-writing.

The UM music therapy program has developed a student practicum site at Bay Point School's Kennedy Campus. The campus serves as a boarding school for 14 to 18 year old moderate risk male juvenile offenders. The primary focus is on education, supported by strong leadership training, teaching accountability, and self-discipline. Through music therapy, students at Bay Point Schools learn to trust, increase communication skills, develop problem solving skills and frustration tolerance, learn to give feedback in a constructive manner and how to put newly learned skills into action. All of these skills are developed through musical experience involving listening and discussion, song writing, creating music videos, and improvisation. The Bay Point program is currently seeking funding to support a full-time music therapist. If you are interested in helping to support this program, contact Mary Louise Cole at (305) 251-3112 or Alan Reisman at (305) 284-3650.

Music Theory and Composition
The University of Miami Student Chapter of the Society of Composers Inc. released its new CD UMSCII II in January. School of Music students and faculty, and alumni collaborated on the recording and production. Included on the CD are compositions by Kevin Babude, Nick Casiano, James Castelli Jr, Cheong Leong Chuah, Robin Cox, Fernando De Sena, Keith Kramer, Timothy Moberly, Adam Silverman, Joseph L. Trafton, Jr, Candace Wheeler, and Adalberto Yannes.

Studio Music and Jazz
The department received six awards in the 21st Annual Down Beat Competition. The award winners and categories in the college level were Concert Jazz Band, Winner (Big Bands); Monk/Mingus Ensemble, Vocal group M-Pact.

Whit Sidener, professor and chair of the department, and Alberto de la Reguera are co-hosts of the University of Miami Jazz Bandstand, a weekly one-hour radio program on WDNA Radio at 11 a.m. on Thursdays. The show features recordings of the department’s outstanding ensembles.

Outstanding Performance (Small Groups); Jazz Vocal Ensemble I, Outstanding Performance (Jazz Show Choirs), Extensions, Outstanding Performance (Jazz Vocal Groups); and Judi Dubowsky, Winner (Jazz Vocal Soloist).

The School’s Jazz Vocal Ensemble, under the direction of Larry Lapin, performed in six concerts with the Naples Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Erich Kunzel, in February. The jazz vocal ensemble joined the orchestra in a tribute to Hoagy Carmichael and Duke Ellington. The department hosted numerous guest artists this year: These artists performed with students and faculty and gave master classes. Among those visiting UM this year were saxophonists/arrangers/composers Jimmy Heath, David Liebman, and Bob Mintzer; vocalists Lari White and Michael Lee, composer/arranger Chuck Owen; bassist David Frisen; guitarist Sid Jacobs and John Stowell; percussionist Jack DeJohnette; trombonist John Fedchock; trumpeter Roger Ingram; drummer James Martin; pianists Mark Levine and Mike Orta; percussionist Steve Houghton, and the vocal group M-Pact.

On April 15-18, the Opera Theater Program presented a full production of the comic opera Cendrillon by the French composer Jules Massenet. Cendrillon is a setting of the familiar fairy tale, Cinderella, by Charles Perrault. The work was staged by professor Franklin Summers with additional staging and choreography by graduate assistant Jan Sage. All four performances were conducted by Russell Young and accompanied by the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra. Sets were obtained by arrangement with Florida State University and costumes were designed by ABC Costumes of Miami. The cast consisted of 48 students enrolled in the Opera Program.

The Musical Theatre Program began the school year celebrating the centennial of the birth of George Gershwin with a Jerry Herman Ring Theatre production of Crazy for You, produced by the department of theatre arts in a first-time collaboration with Festival Miami. The production was directed and choreographed by Clay James, in his first year as choreographer and teacher of dance in the department of theatre arts. Musical Theatre students were also cast in Jerry Herman Ring Theater productions of Museum, Holy Ghosts, and Shakespeare’s Julius Caesar.

Students participated in a number of performances and master classes during the school year. William Bolcom and mezzo-soprano Joan Morris offered a number of master classes and information sessions about early popular and Broadway music. KT Sullivan and Mark Nadler offered master classes dealing with the business of cabaret singing, and Jason Robert Brown addressed a composer's forum and sang a concert of his own music from his recent Broadway show 'Parade and Song for a New World.'

The Musical Theatre Program will host the first ASCAP Musical Theatre Workshop in Miami next season. Academy award-winning director Stephen Schwartz will host the three-day workshop sponsored by Festival Miami. Participants will perform readings of three new musicals by Florida writing teams. Schwartz will be joined by Broadway and television veteran singer Karen Morrow, lyricist Lynn Ahrens, and Broadway composer Stephen Flaherty.

The Musical Theatre Program will also host the National Association of Teachers of Singing Winter Workshop for four days in January, 2000. Between 80 and 100 singing teachers from across the nation will concentrate on "belt voice" singing during this workshop. UM faculty members Kimberly Daniel de Acha and Rachel Lebon will be presenters and David Alt, program director for musical theatre, will coordinate the event.

The UM Chamber Singers joined forces with the Tampa Bay Master Chorale, the University of South Florida Chamber Singers, and the Florida Orchestra for several performances of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis in Tampa in May. The concerts were to have been led by distinguished conductor Robert Shaw; with his death in January, these concerts became a memorial tribute to Shaw and his legendary career. The choruses were prepared by UM's Jo-Michael Scheibe; distinguished German guest conductor Thomas Sanderling was brought in to conduct the concerts. A number of UM undergraduates, the graduate students in choral conducting, and Donald Oglesby all took part. UM alumni Kathie Aagaard, Karen Dumke, Roger Funk, and Lloyd Goldstein are members of the Florida Orchestra. Kat Sleeper, wife of UM Orchestra conductor Thomas Sleeper, went to Tampa to play bassoon.

The University of Miami had an active presence at the American Choral Directors' Association convention in Chicago in February. Jo-Michael Scheibe was part of the student conducting competition. Donald Oglesby was in charge of the session on Baroque performance style with Thomas Wickman, director of music of the Baroque; he also did presentations for the research and publications committee and Choral Journal editorial board. Several students attended the convention, and a number of alumni from around the country were there.

The UM Collegium Musicum were featured in two critically acclaimed performances with the Miami Bach Society, Donald Oglesby directing. The Advent season began with a performance of J.S. Bach's Christmas Oratorio. In April the organization presented a concert entitled The Art of the Fugue, demonstrating the rich variety of Bach's contrapuntal skills.

The choral studies program's annual Holiday Dinner has been scheduled for Sunday, December 5, 1999. The holiday dinner sold out last year. Call by mid-October to reserve tickets for this year's production.

The 1999 Summer Choral Directors' Institute and Choral Camp featured guest conductors Lynne Gackle and Moses Hogan. The February 1999 Collegiate Choral Festival brought in Jing Ling Tam as guest conductor.
In grateful recognition of those whose thoughtful generosity has helped to build and sustain the School of Music with gifts received between June 1, 1998 and May 31, 1999.

alumni activities

South Florida

The School of Music Alumni Association recently held a cocktail reception at the Rusty Pelican restaurant overlooking spectacular Key Biscayne. Many alumni were reunited with faculty and friends. The Board unveiled their latest fundraising effort, the Volpe Building Chair Project, a commemorative project aimed at replacing all the student chairs in the Volpe Building. Each chair costs $100 and includes a name plate that can honor a loved one for their help and support or can commemorate an alumni's years at the School. This is an ongoing project and the participation of all is greatly appreciated.

Lari White, a 1988 graduate of the University of Miami jazz and music engineering programs, was acknowledged as the 1998 Distinguished Alumna Lecturer and the 1998 guest alumna performer for the UM Alumni alumni activities (cont’d.)

Association. A continental breakfast, a Jelly and Jam Jazz Brunch, and a concert featuring Lari White and student and faculty jazz musicians, highlighted the alumni festivities.

Greater Chicago

Dean William Hipp joined Chicago alumni at the home of alumnus, Gary Fry, who co-hosted a special presentation by the Jazz Vocal I Ensemble directed by Larry Lapin. Gary and his wife Carol graciously opened their home to a group of about fifty musicians, alumni, and guests for a wonderful event.
friends of music

combining music with good times and sound purpose

The Friends of Music, Inc. is an independent organization of individuals who are dedicated to activities that merge their interest in music and music appreciation with philanthropy and special events. They seek to enrich and educate their members by way of the many fine activities and musicals held throughout the year. As ambassadors, the Friends of Music provide a link from the School to the South Florida community. Additionally, they raise funds to benefit the Friends of Music Endowed Scholarship Fund that is annually awarded to talented music students.

Traditionally, the Friends of Music have hosted the Annual Orientation Breakfast, held in August, for new students and their families. This breakfast provides newcomers the opportunity to meet the faculty, staff, and other music students and creates a warm welcome to their new school.

This past year the Friends of Music presented the annual "Music on the Green." A family event, held on the lawn of the UM Coral Gables campus that featured music by the University of Miami Symphonic Winds and a variety of other activities including delicious food, art and collectibles, face painting, and pony rides...a real old-fashioned Sunday-in-the-park! Plans for the 3rd Annual Music on the Green are well underway.

On May 22, the Friends of Music ended the year with a combination meeting and musical presentation at the home of members Marvin Leibowitz and Isa Garcia. Graduate student Carla Mia Davis performed a variety of piano pieces to entertain the guests. The evening included the annual election of officers and the presentation of a check to Dean William Hipp for the Friends of Music Scholarship Endowment Fund.

For further information about Friends of Music, please contact Maggie Rossi, Coordinator of Constituent Relations, University of Miami School of Music, 6200 San Amaro Drive, Coral Gables, Florida 33146. Phone 305-284-2238.
